

Tips To Add Topic Sentences & Thesis Statements Within an Essay

Thesis statements and topic sentences hold paramount importance in an essay. They should be crafted carefully and skillfully. Every paragraph in an essay starts with a topic sentence that announces what the paragraph is all about. In writing company, topic sentences and thesis statements work as the backbone of the essay. Topic sentence primarily contains the topic and central idea of the paragraph. By reading the topic sentence, the reader comes to know the argument and also that the subsequent supporting material would be evidence or reasons in the backup.

In order to write an effective essay with a strong topic and thesis statement follow the steps below:

Thesis statement

In the essay, the thesis statement is called the heart of the essay. It contains the main points of the essay. A well-crafted thesis statement accounts for all the topic sentences in the subsequent paragraphs. Preferably, the thesis statement appears at the end of the introduction part but the writing assignments can also choose to write it in the beginning. Make sure that you take your time in writing a well-crafted thesis statement that sums up the purpose and argument of the whole essay.

Make an Outline of the Topic Sentences

This will ensure what do you want to say in each paragraph and how? Outlining will clarify the purpose of each paragraph and will also prioritize what should come first, second, and so forth. The topic sentences in each paragraph should be more specific than the thesis statement and should also be backed up by substantial examples and evidence at writing my essays for me.

Solidify your Topic Sentence with Examples

Topic sentences do not create an impact unless they are backed up by examples. It is just a sentence that argues and that argumentation should be bolstered by adequate well-chosen examples and irrefutable evidence. The effectiveness of your topic sentence depends upon the supporting material. So, make sure you choose credible, authentic, and up-to-date examples and reasons through writing my essay for me.

Topic Sentences as Transitions

As you write the essay, make sure that there is a logical connection between the ideas, and ask yourself how the topic sentence related to the preceding one. It is advisable to use transition words in your topic sentences to signal a connection between the ideas. There should not be any hiccups between the sentences and the smoothness should run throughout the essay with custom writing.

Craft Your Own Topic Sentence

You should not start the topic sentences with quotes rather they should be your own words. Quotes should come later as supporting material. Preferably, it should be a sentence or two. You may add subtopics in the essay that could complement the topic sentence.

Lastly, topic sentences are the signpost or headlines for the reader that alert them about the main point and what is likely to follow. The readers may decide to read the essay or not to read it on the basis of the topic sentence because it works as a mini-thesis that talks about the argumentation of a cheap essay writing service. Always start your paragraph with a topic sentence and then back it up with adequate evidence and proof.

A topic sentence singularly does not hold any significance until and unless it has the support of credible examples in subsequent lines. Make sure you choose the best backup material. Also, the length of all the paragraphs should be equal. You may seek help from CollegeEssay for the supporting material but the topic sentence should be your own words. An essay is effective and impactful if it has a strong thesis statement and well-crafted topic sentences coupled with the supporting material strung together in a logical sequence.
